Jess Walter February 7, Mobile Leave a comment. Against a backdrop of regular headlines around fraud and digital security, the messages about the benefits and safeguards of mobile payments need to be strong to stand. Despite this, Fintech is, and will continue, to disrupt the traditional banks and financial services sector.

This lack of enthusiasm is understandable: the American consumer has many choices until now, it was the credit card issuer that held legal liability under the law for fake card transactions. This enhancement is possible because, in a typical credit card transaction in the United States, all parties to the transaction get an incomplete view of the sale.
